Today we announced that Crestwood has entered into an agreement to be acquired by Energy Transfer in a tax-efficient, all-equity transaction. We believe this transaction represents a compelling opportunity for Crestwood and its unitholders, who we expect will benefit from enhanced and de-risked distributions upon closing of the transaction, thanks to the combined company's anticipated substantially increased scale and cash flow diversification, with the ability to participate in the long-term upside potential of Energy Transfer's valuation.

Over the last 12 years, Crestwood's employees have worked tirelessly to build a first-class organization focused on providing safe, reliable, and sustainable midstream services to our customers while maximizing value for our investors. The strategic transaction announced today with Energy Transfer is the result of a comprehensive review conducted by our Board of Directors and management team, which gave significant consideration to Crestwood's growth potential as a standalone business as compared to our potential as part of a much larger organization with the scale and diversification of Energy Transfer. Energy Transfer is one of the largest and most diversified midstream energy companies in North America with nearly 125,000 miles of pipelines and associated energy infrastructure across 41 states.

We believe Crestwood will be well-positioned to advance our strategic objectives and deliver for customers and business partners nationwide with significantly greater scale and assets stretching coast to coast and spanning the entire midstream value chain.
